¹The annual data on travellers and overnight stays in hotels showed together with the rest of the accommodations in this section, have been subject of a previous dissemination by the INE (press release of January 29)

²The results showed by the table are the addition of the monthly figures. The potential gaps between subtotals and the total are due to the fact that the data are shown without decimals, but they are calculated taking them into account. So, the differences may be explained by the rounding.

Methodological note

The main objective of the Non-Hotel Tourist Accommodation Occupancy Survey (holiday dwellings, campsites, and rural tourism accommodation) is to ascertain the behaviour of a series of variables that allow us to describe the basic characteristics of this sector. These variables are the following: with regards to demand, there is information on travellers, overnight stays and average stay distributed by country of residence of the travellers and category of the establishment they are staying in or by Autonomous Community of origin in the case of Spanish travellers. As regards the supply, information includes the estimated number of establishments open for the season, estimated number of vacancies, level of occupancy and information on employment in the sector, in terms of the category of the establishment. This information is offered monthly, on a national, autonomous community, provincial and tourist area level. And afterwards, one the year is over, the data of the 12 months are disseminated.

The two main variables in these surveys are travellers checked-in, which are all persons who stay one or more consecutive nights in the same accommodation, and overnight stays, that are understood to be every night that a traveller stays in the establishment.

The target population of study is constituted by all the non-hotel tourist accommodation established in the Spanish territory.

A tourist apartment establishment is understood to be any productive unit whose exclusive or productive activity is to accommodate tourists, distributed in furnished units (apartments, chalets, villas, bungalows,...). A tourist apartment (unit) is considered to be a property that is habitually rented for occasional guests.

Tourist campsites are understood to be those land spaces which are duly delimited, equipped and conditioned, destined to habitually provide people, after the payment of a stipulated price, a place to live outdoors for a limited period of time for holiday or tourism purposes, and using as a residence mobile homes, caravans, tents or other similar easily transportable elements.

Rural Tourism Accommodation Establishments are those establishments or dwellings destined for tourist lodging in exchange for a price with or without any other complementary services that are registered in the corresponding Register of each Autonomous Community. These establishments usually present a determined set of characteristics:

They are located in a rural environment.

They are constructions with a common architectonic style that is characteristic of the area or which are located in land properties that maintain active livestock and farming operations (agrotourism).

They offer a limited number of vacancies and rooms for the accommodation of guests and comply with certain infrastructure and basic services requirements.

The Holiday Dwelling Price Index, HDPI, is a statistical measure of the monthly evolution of the series of main price rates used by holiday dwelling establishment.

The Tourist Campsites Price Index, TCPI, is a statistical measure of the monthly evolution of the series of main price rates used by campsites.

The Rural Tourism Accommodation Price Index, RTAPI, is a statistical measurement of the monthly evolution of prices applied by those running this type of establishment to their clients.

² To facilitate the comparability between data from different Autonomous Communities (and because of the different regulation and different characteristics), a group called rural house has been created, with those accommodations with similar typology (location, capacity, etc...).

The variables included in the previous table have been estimated with that type of establishments.

The variables shown in the table have been estimated with the type of accommodation under rural tourist accommodation.
